PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE NORTH CAROLINA COURT OF APPEALS, SECOND DISTRICT

CITATION TO THE OPINION BELOW

The opinion of the North Carolina Court of Appeals, Second District, is reported at 48 N.C. App. 481, 269 S.E.2d 680 (1980). (A. 1).[1]

JURISDICTION

The Judgment of the North Carolina Court of Appeals, Second District, was entered on September 2, 1980, affirming the Trial Court's denial of Petitioners' Motion to Suppress. (A. 1). On November 14, 1980, the Supreme Court of North Carolina entered its Judgment Dismissing Appeal on Motion of Attorney General. (A. 11). The jurisdiction of this Court is invoked under 28 U.S.C. §1257(3).

CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISION INVOLVED

The case, sub judice, involves Petitioners' rights to be free from unreasonable searches and seizures guaranteed by the Fourth Amendment to the United States Constitution, which provides:

> The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On February 6, 1979, Petitioners were indicted in Hyde County, in the State of North Carolina, for various offenses related to the possession, sale and delivery of marijuana.

Prior to trial, Motions to Suppress were filed on behalf of each of the Petitioners. These Motions alleged, inter alia, that the evidence sought to be introduced against Petitioners by the State of North Carolina at trial was seized from Petitioners in violation of rights guaranteed to them by the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. The Motions to Suppress were consolidated and heard on July 2-3, 1979, in the General Court of Justice, Superior Court Division.

Testimony adduced during the hearing on the Motions to Suppress revealed that in the early morning hours of January 14, 1979, a Ford truck with a camper shell, being driven by Petitioner Trapper, had left the property owned by Petitioner Nunzio Lombardo, and was stopped by Deputy Sheriff Charlie Carrowan of the Hyde County Sheriff's Department. A subsequent search of the truck, following the procurement of a search warrant, disclosed forty (40) bales of marijuana therein.

As a result of the search of the truck, a second search warrant was obtained, and additional bales of marijuana were discovered in a tin shed on the property owned by Petitioner Nunzio Lombardo. Petitioners Nunzio Lombardo, Dennis Lombardo, Vincent Lorusso and Clark

Oldenbrook were arrested upon the execution of the second search warrant.

The first witness for the State of North Carolina at the hearing on the Motions to Suppress was Deputy Sheriff Carrowan. Deputy Carrowan testified that he first met Petitioner Nunzio Lombardo one-and-a-half to two years prior to January 14, 1979, the date of the incident in question. At that time, Carrowan had a conversation with Petitioner Nunzio Lombardo with respect to the property involved in this case, which at that time Lombardo was in the process of purchasing. From that time up until the arrest of Lombardo, the two spoke very infrequently. (MST. 10-12, 67).[2]

The Lombardo property was located off a rural paved road. An unpaved rock road was put in to connect this rural paved road with the structures on the Lombardo property. (MST. 15). Although the structures on the Lombardo premises were not plainly visible from the road, Carrowan was aware of the fact that there were two structures. (MST. 101-102).

Approximately six weeks before January 14, 1979, Carrowan began to take notice of complaints from neighbors of the Lombardo property of boat noises and truck noises in the vicinity. (MST. 15, 68, A. 28-29, 40-41). Although several men resided in the area, Carrowan indicated that most of the complaints came from women. (MST. 75-76). Carrowan indicated that his own suspicions were aroused by the presence of out-of-state vehicles in the area, the locked metal gate across the entrance to the premises, the fact that Lombardo had little in common with any law enforcement officers in Hyde County (even though he had previously indicated to Carrowan that he was a retired New York City police officer), and that the place ". . . was better than private." (MST. 69-70, 11, A. 40-42, 28).

Carrowan testified that on two occasions subsequent to the purchase of the property by Petitioner Nunzio Lombardo, he had gone on the property, at least once with his wife, because ". . . we were interested in what was going on in the community." (MST. 97-98).

On December 21, 1978, Carrowan received a telephone call asking him to go to Fortiscue Creek to provide assistance to a boat which was aground. Fortiscue Creek runs past the Lombardo premises. (MST. 16). A fifty-seven (57) foot shallow draft vessel named the "Lady Barbara" had run aground approximately one mile from the Lombardo premises. (MST. 17, 123). Carrowan spoke with an individual located on the "Lady Barbara" and received what he considered to be an unsatisfactory explanation as to how the boat became situated and immobilized in Fortiscue Creek. In view of the size of the boat, Carrowan arranged for the Coast Guard to come and tow it. (MST. 20-21). On cross-examination, Carrowan admitted that he had not seen any of the Petitioners on the "Lady Barbara", nor did he detect any illegal activity on or about the boat. (MST. 72-73, A. 43). At no point in his testimony did Carrowan establish any connection whatsoever between the events surrounding the "Lady Barbara" on December 21, 1978 and the Lombardo premises located a mile away.

Other than having met Petitioner Nunzio Lombardo in the manner set forth above, Carrowan had not met any of the other Petitioners herein, had no prior knowledge of any possible illegal activities being carried on by them and, in fact, ". . . as far as [he] was concerned, they didn't exist until the morning we raided the place." (MST. 71).

After the "Lady Barbara" incident, Carrowan became "very suspicious" with respect to the Lombardo premises. (MST. 68, A. 41). He testified that, as a result of that incident, he was certain that "in [his] mind" the Lombardo property was being used to store or transport marijuana. (MST. 95, A. 46). Although he ". . . had been kind of keeping watch on the place . . ." he deemed it necessary at this point to surveil the property further. (MST. 68, 23, A. 41, 30). Since he was unable to observe the property from beyond the gate across the driveway, he disguised himself, and attempted to observe the premises in his homemade boat from the water. (MST. 22-23, A. 29-30). He had concluded ". . . in [his] mind that there was something going on that should not be in this area." (MST. 23-24, A. 30). According to Carrowan, in the course of this surveillance, two shots were fired at him from the vicinity of the Lombardo premises. (MST. 24). He left and made no further effort to investigate the alleged shooting incident. (MST. 25, 115-116, A. 31-32, 49-50).

Carrowan next began to surveil the property from the roadside. (MST. 26, A. 32). He noticed tire tracks leading into and out of the Lombardo property, and considered the amount of traffic to be abnormal. (MST. 28). However, he did not observe any illegal activity with respect to this traffic. (MST. 69).

Advance preparations were then made to surveil a vehicle leaving the Lombardo premises, should the opportunity arise. Pre-arranged false radio signals were devised between Carrowan, Trooper Darrell Bass of the State Highway Patrol, and Deputy Sheriff Melvin Collins. (MST. 37, 66, 104-105). A pre-arranged plan as to vehicle positioning was also devised by the three officers. (MST. 102-103). The false radio signals were created due to the unfounded concern on the part of Carrowan that should their stopping of a vehicle be detected, the occupants of the Lombardo property might set fire to the structures, thus preventing the police from conducting a search thereof. (MST. 37, 119, A. 34, 50-51).

On January 13, 1979, Deputy Carrowan finally received his opportunity to surveil a vehicle in the vicinity of the Lombardo premises, and put his contingency plan into effect. (MST. 28, 82, A. 32, 43-44). At about 5:30 P.M. on that date, Carrowan had received a telephone call from an "informant" (a neighbor in the community) that a ". . . truck or rig had gone into Lombardo's place." (MST. 31, 82). This was the first time that Carrowan had the opportunity to surveil the property while a truck was still there. (MST. 82-83, A. 44-45). He arrived at approximately 6:30 P.M. on that date, and secreted himself beyond the gate to the Lombardo property. (MST. 32). At approximately 9:30 P.M., he left his position just long enough to exchange his patrol car for his personal vehicle. (MST. 32-33). Bass and Collins were notified to be on the alert for radio communications and to be in their pre-arranged locations. (MST. 84, 102, A. 45, 46-47).

During the 5:30 P.M. telephone conversation, the neighbor had described the vehicle as "[a] Ford truck with camper [sic] body on it." (MST. 34). At approximately midnight, Carrowan observed lights and heard a motor indicating a vehicle coming from the Lombardo premises. (MST. 33). Carrowan first saw "clearance lights" across the top of the vehicle, which he knew to be located on campers and trucks. Next, he saw the headlights. (MST. 33-34). Although he was not familiar with this truck, Carrowan testified that "[i]t was travelling far to [sic] slow for the rate the motor was turning." (MST. 34, A. 33).

Carrowan testified that it was approximately two hundred yards from the structures on the Lombardo property to the intersection of the Lombardo driveway with the rural paved road. (MST. 100). When the vehicle was approximately "half way out" Carrowan had completed his observations and determined that he would have to leave quickly and get his patrol car ". . . because [he] had no blue light on [his] personal car." (MST. 35, A. 33).

In addition to his need to secure his patrol car, there is absolutely no doubt that Carrowan intended to stop the vehicle on the basis of the observations set forth above. Significantly, when asked if he intended to stop the vehicle, Carrowan replied: "Yes, if I could find a reason." (MST. 84-85, A. 45-46). When asked if he intended to conduct a search of the truck, Carrowan replied: "If I had further reason to search this truck such as if he denied me the privilege to look or anything else that he had to hide, anything that would give me any idea that he had something to hide, yes, I intended to search it." (MST. 84, A. 45-46).

Carrowan left the vicinity in advance of the truck, exchanged vehicles, and began to follow the truck along the rural paved road and finally, west on U.S. Route 264. (MST. 36-37). Bass and Collins were notified. (MST. 37-38).

Carrowan followed the truck (which subsequently turned out to be driven by Petitioner Trapper) for approximately sixteen (16) miles. (MST. 106, A. 47-48). During that time, he did not observe the driver of the vehicle violate any motor vehicle law. (MST. 107, A. 48). Significantly, Carrowan stopped the vehicle " . . . within one mile of the county line . . . " . (MST. 106, A. 48).

When Carrowan stopped Trapper's vehicle, Deputy Collins, who had been following Carrowan, pulled directly behind Carrowan's vehicle. (MST. 39, 147). The two police officers were joined by Trooper Bass some minutes later. (MST. 40, 130). Carrowan approached the vehicle and asked Petitioner Trapper for a driver's license. (MST. 40, A. 35). There were no problems with his license. (MST. 109, A. 48-49). Carrowan then informed Trapper that authorities in the area had been having problems with people taking furniture from old houses and asked to look inside the camper. (MST. 41, A. 35). However, he indicated that he did not suspect Trapper of having stolen furniture. (MST. 60, A. 38). Carrowan also testified that some time during the evening he may have mentioned that he was concerned about illegal aliens, but was not certain. (MST. 61). In any event, according to Carrowan, when asked, Trapper told Carrowan that he (Trapper) did not have a key to the camper door. (MST. 41).

Next, Carrowan asked for, and received, a registration card for the vehicle. (MST. 41, 109, A. 36, 49). By this time, Trooper Bass had arrived on the scene and was given the vehicle registration card to "check out". (MST. 41, 56, A. 36, 37). Trooper Bass then went back to his vehicle, checked the registration, found it to be valid, and returned it to Deputy Carrowan. (MST. 57, 124, A. 37-38, 51).

After he had returned the registration to Deputy Carrowan, Trooper Bass testified that he went to the right hand or passenger side of the camper " . . . and stood there a few minutes." (MST. 125, A. 51). Bass testified that at this time, he walked around the vehicle "about four times", during which time he smelled what he thought to be marijuana. (MST. 133-134). At this point, Bass approached Carrowan and informed him of his suspicions. (MST. 125, 57).

Deputy Collins confirmed previous testimony that following the completion of the license and registration check, and up until the discovery of the odor of marijuana, Trapper was " . . . held . . . there for some period of time . . ." and " . . . was not free to leave . . .". (MST. 154-155, A. 51-52).

Following the discovery of what was thought to be the odor of marijuana, Trapper was placed under arrest and Deputy Collins was sent to get a search warrant for the vehicle. (MST. 45, 47, A. 36, 37). Trapper was placed in the police vehicle, and his truck was taken into custody by the police. (MST. 62-63, A. 39-40).

Deputy Collins testified that he met Mrs. Lenora Bright, Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court in Hyde County, for the purpose of securing a search warrant. (MST. 155). Collins was the affiant for the warrant, which was typed by Mrs. Bright on the basis of information provided by him. (MST. 155-159). The affidavit in support of the warrant which was subsequently issued by Mrs. Bright stated as follows: "xxxxxxxxxx a strong odor or [sic] marijuana was noticed as xxxxxxxxxx a license check was being made on driver of said vehicle. Information was given in confidence and from a very reliable informant, also." (A. 24). With respect to the aforesaid Application, Collins indicated on cross-examination that he was not the individual who had received the confidential information from the reliable informant. (MST. 160, A 52).

Collins returned to the scene at approximately 1:40 A.M. with the Search Warrant. (MST. 54). Trapper had been placed under arrest prior to 1:00 A.M. (MST. 54). The Search Warrant was executed and several bales of marijuana were found inside the truck. (MST. 48).

Following this discovery, the officers returned to the Sheriff's Office in Swan Quarter for the purpose of obtaining a second Search Warrant for Petitioner Nunzio Lombardo's property. (MST. 50-51).

The Application for the second Search Warrant, for which Carrowan was the applicant, sought to search "a house trailer, double wide, white, owned by Nunzio J. Lumbreds [sic] . . . " (A. 27).

Lewis Young of the North Carolina State Bureau of Investigation testified that the second Search Warrant was served between 4:30 and 5:00 A.M. on January 14, 1979. (MST. 166). Young testified that the mobile home on the Lombardo premises was entered by the officers and the Warrant served and executed. (MST. 166). Petitioners Nunzio Lombardo, Dennis Lombardo, Vincent Serge Lorusso and Clark William Oldenbrook were found inside the mobile home. (MST. 52-53). Although no marijuana was found inside the mobile home, Young testified that he went out to the tin shed (which was not mentioned in the Warrant) because "[s]omeone came in and advised me that there's [sic] bales in the warehouse out back." (MST. 166, A. 52). Numerous bales of marijuana were found in the tin warehouse. (MST. 167).

During the course of the hearing on the Motion to Suppress, Petitioners Vincent Lorusso, Nunzio Lombardo, and Dennis Lombardo all testified and established their standing to contest the validity of the searches and seizures as set forth above. (MST. 235 et. seq., 258 et. seq., 279 et seq.).

At the conclusion of the hearing thereon, the Motion to Suppress was denied by the Court. (MST. 317). An Order denying the Motion to Suppress was filed by the Court on August 6, 1979. (A. 13).

The cases against Petitioners came on for trial on August 13, 1979 in the General Court of Justice, Superior Court Division of Hyde County. (AR. 2-3).[3] All Petitioners entered pleas to various charges, but appropriately preserved their right to appeal to the North Carolina Court of Appeals, Second District, for the purpose of obtaining review of the Trial Court's denial of their Motions to Suppress. (AR. 3-4).

[3]The symbol "AR." refers to the Appellate Record filed in the North Carolina Court of Appeals, Second District.

On September 2, 1980, the North Carolina Court of Appeals, Second District, filed its Opinion affirming the Trial Court. (A. 1). Timely review of that Opinion was sought in the Supreme Court of North Carolina. However, on November 14, 1980, that Court entered its Judgment Dismissing Appeal on Motion of Attorney General. (A. 11).

REASONS FOR GRANTING THE WRIT

The administration of criminal justice in the application of the Fourth Amendment's exclusionary rule will be clarified by granting this Petition for Writ of Certiorari. Unless redressed, Petitioners will suffer irreparable, blatant violations of rights guaranteed them by the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution. See Stone v. Powell, 428 U.S. 465 (1976). State Court application of the exlusionary rule ought to be consistent with this Court's decisions. Granting this Writ will enable this Court to clarify the need for uniformity of enforcement of Fourth Amendment principles in both rural and urban communities.

1. The stop of Petitioner Trapper's vehicle, and the detention of Petitioner Trapper, were illegal.

It is firmly established that vehicle stops, and subsequent "investigatory detentions" of the operators and occupants thereof, are entitled to the protection of the Fourth Amendment. In Delaware v. Prouse, 440 U.S. 648 (1979), this Court held that:

> The Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments are implicated in this case because stopping an automobile and detaining its occupants constitute a "seizure" within the meaning of those Amendments, even though the purpose of the stop is limited and the resulting detention quite brief. United States v. Martinez-Fuerte, 428 U.S. 543, 556-558, 96 S.Ct. 3074, 3082-3083, 49 L.Ed.2d 1116 (1976); United States v. Brignoni-Ponce, 422 U.S. 873, 878, 95 S.Ct. 2574, 2578, 45 L.Ed.2d 607 (1975); cf. Terry v. Ohio, 392 U.S. 1, 16, 88 S.Ct. 1868, 1877, 20 L.Ed.2d 889 (1968).

Id. at 653.

In recognition of the above, this Court concluded that:

> . . . except in those situations in which there is at least articulable and reasonable suspicion that a motorist is unlicensed or that an automobile is not registered, or that either the vehicle or an occupant is otherwise subject to seizure for violation of law, stopping an automobile and detaining the driver in order to check his driver's license and the registration of the automobile are unreasonable under the Fourth Amendment.

Id. at 663.

In Dunaway v. New York, 442 U.S. 200 (1979), this Court recognized that the limited intrusions created by Terry v. Ohio, 392 U.S. 1 (1968) and its progeny were not intended to supplant or alter the " 'long prevailing standards' of probable cause" associated with arrest. Id. at 208 quoting Brinegar v. United States, 388 U.S. 160, 176 (1949).

Most recently, in Reid v. Georgia, U.S. , 100 S.Ct. 2752 (1980), this Court definitively stated that:

> The Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments' prohibition of searches and seizures that are not supported by some objective justification governs all seizures of the person, "including seizures that involve only a brief detention short of traditional arrest. Davis v. Mississippi, 394 U.S. 721, 89 S.Ct. 1394, 22 L.Ed.2d 676 (1969); Terry v. Ohio, 392 U.S.1, 16-19, 88 S.Ct. 1868, 1877-1878, 20 L.Ed.2d 889 (1969)." United States v. Brignoni-Ponce, 422 U.S. 873, 878, 95 S.Ct. 2574, 2578, 45 L.Ed.2d 607. [footnote omitted]. While the Court has recognized that in some circumstances a person may be detained briefly, without probable cause to arrest him, any curtailment of a person's liberty by the police must be supported at least by a reasonable and articulable suspicion that the person seized is engaged in criminal activity. See Brown v. Texas, 443 U.S. 57, 51, 99 S.Ct. 2637, 2640, 61 L.Ed.2d 357; Delaware v. Prouse, 440 U.S. 648, 661, 99 S.Ct. 1391, 1400, 59 L.Ed.2d 660; United States v. Brignoni-Ponce, supra; Adams v. Williams, 407 U.S. 143, 146-149, 92 S.Ct. 1921, 1923, 32 L.Ed.2d 612; Terry v. Ohio, supra.
> Id. at , 100 S.Ct. at 2753.

In the instant case, the lack of a "reasonable and articulable suspicion" for the stop of the vehicle driven by Petitioner Trapper is readily apparent. Reid v. Georgia, supra. Either standing alone, or considered collectively, the reasons advanced by Deputy Carrowan for the stopping of the vehicle, and the subsequent detention of Petitioner Trapper, fall far short of the "specific, objective facts" required. Brown v. Texas, 443 U.S. 47, 51 (1979), Delaware v. Prouse, supra., Terry v. Ohio, supra. Indeed, it is evident that the real basis for Deputy Carrowan's classic rural "[interest] in the community" (MST. 97-98) was because the Lombardo property was " . . . better than private." (MST. 69-70, A. 43). However, the boat and truck noises, the presence of out-of-state vehicles, the locked metal gate across the entrance to the premises, and the fact that Petitioner Nunzio Lombardo had little in common with the police officers of Hyde County, are insufficient,when measured objectively, to rise to the level of articulable suspicion. Carrowan himself testified that he saw nothing illegal with respect to the traffic in the vicinity of the Lombardo premises. (MST. 69). Ultimately, as Carrowan suggested on more than one occasion, the suspicions were "in [his] mind". (MST. 23-24, 95, A. 30, 46).

Moreover, not even the "Lady Barbara" incident, which made Deputy Carrowan "very suspicious", as well as "sure" that the Lombardo premises were being used to store or transport marijuana (MST. 68, 95, A. 41, 46), contribute to the paucity of objective facts available to support Carrowan's inferences. As noted previously, the "Lady Barbara" incident occurred approximately three-and-a-half weeks before the stop of Trapper's vehicle; the vessel was found approximately one mile from the Lombardo premises; and none of the Petitioners were present on or connected with the boat. (MST. 16, 17, 72). As Carrowan himself admitted, neither he, nor the Coast Guard, had observed anything illegal occurring with respect to the "Lady Barbara", (MST. 73, A. 43). Finally, Carrowan agreed on cross-examination that the "Lady Barbara" was a shallow draft vessel, and as such notorious for its inability to bear weight. Ultimately, an objective analysis totally fails to support any connection whatsoever between the "Lady Barbara" and either the Trapper vehicle or the Lombardo premises.

Even if there was some objective justification for Carrowan's suspicions with respect to the Lombardo property, the mere entry onto, and exit from the premises by the vehicle driven by Trapper on January 13-14, 1979, fails to objectively support any reasonable suspicion that either Trapper or the vehicle were ". . . subject to seizure for violation of law . . .", Delaware v. Prouse, 440 U.S. at 663. Carrowan was not familiar either with Trapper or the vehicle he was driving. (MST. 71).

The record clearly reveals that Deputy Carrowan waited for the opportunity to execute his intention to stop any vehicle exiting the Lombardo premises. This is established by the pre-arranged radio signals and police vehicle positioning preparations made with Trooper Bass and Deputy Collins. Furthermore, Carrowan acted (significantly, to get a vehicle with a blue light) after having seen only the lights of the truck, which was still, according to his own testimony, approximately one hundred yards away from him. (MST. 35, 37, 66, 84, 100, 102-103, 104-105, A. 33-34, 45, 46-47). As Carrowan admitted, he intended in advance to stop this vehicle ". . . if [he] could find a reason." (MST. 84-85, A. 45-46). After sixteen miles of following the vehicle, with no violations of any North Carolina motor vehicle law observed, it is apparent that Carrowan's "reason" appeared in the form of the fast approaching Beaufort County line. (MST. 106, 107, A. 47, 48).

Finally, Carrowan's professed concern about the stealing of furniture from old houses, admittedly a ruse insofar as Petitioner Trapper was concerned, is further indicative of the sham nature of the vehicle stop.

For the reasons set forth above, in upholding the validity of the stop and detention at issue herein, the Courts of North Carolina have failed to recognize and implement applicable Fourth Amendment standards, as articulated by this Court. Granting the relief sought will conform the decisions of the Courts below to the Federal Constitutional standards enunciated by this Court and accordingly, vindicate rights guaranteed Petitioners by the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution.

2. The tainted and otherwise insufficient nature of the search warrants.

It is fundamental that ". . . evidence of criminal action may not, save in very limited and closely confined situations, be seized without a judicially issued search warrant." Frank v. Maryland, 359 U.S. 360, 365 (1959). See also Arkansas v. Sanders, 442 U.S. 753 (1979), United States v. Chadwick, 433 U.S. 1 (1977).

However, it is equally fundamental that the validity of search warrants themselves, as well as affidavits in support thereof, are subject to the requirements of the Fourth Amendment. In Whitley v. Warden, Wyoming

State Penitentiary, 401 U.S. 560, (1971), it was held that:

> The decisions of this Court concerning Fourth Amendment probable-cause requirements before a warrant for either arrest or search can issue require that the judicial officer issuing such a warrant be supplied with sufficient information to support an independent judgment that probable cause exists for the warrant. [footnote omitted]. Spinelli v. United States, 393 U.S. 410, 89 S.Ct. 584, 21 L.Ed.2d 637 (1969); United States v. Ventresca, 380 U.S. 102, 85 S.Ct. 741, 13 L.Ed.2d 684 (1965); Aguilar v. Texas, 378 U.S. 108, 84 S.Ct. 1509, 12 L.Ed.2d 723 (1964); Rugendorf v. United States, 376 U.S. 528, 84 S.Ct. 825, 11 L.Ed.2d 887 (1964); Jones v. United States, 362 U.S. 257, 80 S.Ct. 725, 4 L.Ed.2d 697 (1960); Giordenello v. United States, 357 U.S. 480, 78 S.Ct. 1245, 2 L.Ed.2d 1503 (1958). Id. at 564.

A. The vehicle warrant

The search warrant for the vehicle driven by Petitioner Trapper, and stopped by Deputy Carrowan, suffers from two fatal deficiencies: first, both the information used to supply the vehicle description and the facts set forth to establish probable cause, were a direct product of the illegal stop of the vehicle.[4] When purged of the information seized as a result of the illegal stop and seizure, the Application for Search

[4]The Application for Search Warrant, which contains both the vehicle description, and the facts in support of probable cause, is reproduced at page 24 of the Appendix attached hereto.

Warrant is clearly insufficient to meet either the particularity requirement of the Fourth Amendment or the requirement that facts sufficient to establish probable cause be alleged. cf. Franks v. Delaware, 438 U.S. 154 (1978), Wong Sun v. United States, 371 U.S. 471 (1963), Whiteley v. Warden, Wyoming State Penitentiary, supra.

Second, and independent of the issue of the taint resulting from the illegal stop, the Application for Search Warrant (A. 24) clearly fails to provide ". . . sufficient information to support an independent judgment that probable cause exists for the warrant." Whiteley v. Warden, Wyoming State Penitentiary, supra at 564.[5] There is a complete dearth of "operative fact[s]" to ". . . support the independent judgment of a disinterested magistrate." Id.

[5]A perusal of the facts in support of probable cause, while referring to "a strong odor or [sic] marijuana," fails to indicate that the odor was emanating from the truck (A. 24). Furthermore, whether or not such an odor did actually emanate from the vehicle, based on the physical condition of the truck, as well as the weather conditions existing at the time of the vehicle stop, was an issue hotly contested by Petitioners in the trial court. Although Deputy Carrowan, Trooper Bass, and Deputy Collins all testified at the hearing on the Motion to Suppress that they were able to smell marijuana (MST. 46, 125, 147-148), Agent Lewis Young of the State Bureau of Investigation, who arrived at the scene of the vehicle stop, and who had previously participated in a seizure of some 22 to 25 tons of marijuana, did not recall smelling an odor of marijuana about the truck on the evening in question. (MST. 192). Furthermore, at the hearing, Petitioners proffered expert testimony to the effect that, based on the physical condition of the camper, as well as the weather conditions existing on the evening in question, it would not have been possible to smell an odor of marijuana emanating from the truck. (MST. 286 et seq., 299 et seq.).

Finally, insofar as the Application for Search Warrant indicates that "[i]nformation was given in confidence and from a very reliable informant, also [.]" (A. 24), the Affidavit clearly fails to comply with the requirements enunciated by this Court for the sufficiency of such "informant" information in Aguilar v. Texas, 378 U.S. 108 (1964) and Spinelli v. United States, 393 U.S. 410 (1969).

B. The warrant for the Lombardo property

The search warrant subsequently obtained for the search of the Lombardo property suffers from many of the same constitutional deficiencies as the warrant for the vehicle.[6] First, the warrant for the Lombardo property

[6]The Application for the Search Warrant for the Lombardo property is reproduced at page 27 of the Appendix attached hereto. Although somewhat difficult to read, the facts purporting to establish probable cause in the second warrant are set forth as follows:

> That on 1-8-79 affiant was advised by a confidential source who had been watching the above described property entryway on RPR 1145. That on 1-8-79 this source observed a tractor-trailer truck enter the property. That on 1-8-79 source said they heard noises like large truck motor roaring and source also complained of boat motor noises and truck noises at night which kept source awake. That this property belongs to Nunzio J. Lumbards [sic] who told affiant on previous occasions that the property was for vacation and retirement. That on 12-21-78 affiant observed a 57 ft. pleasure boat from Wilmington, Delaware on Fortescue Creek approx. 1 mile from Lumbards [sic] property. Said boat was stuck in 2½ feet of water. That at 5:30 P.M. affiant saw Ford pickup truck with camper enter Lumbards [sic] property on 1-13-79. That said exited said property at 12:00 midnight 1-13-79. Said camper truck was stopped by affiant and search [sic] with warrant on 1-14-79 and found to contain was fatally tainted by the prior illegal stop and search of the vehicle. In Wong Sun v. United States, 371 U.S. 471 (1963), this Court held that the test for determining whether or not illegally seized evidence is "fruit of the poisonous tree", thus subject to exclusion, is "whether, granting establishment of the primary illegality, the evidence to which instant objection is made has been come at by exploitation of that illegality or instead by means sufficiently distinguishable to be purged of the primary taint." [citation omitted] Id. at 488.

In the instant case, there can be little doubt that vital aspects of the Affidavit in support of the second warrant were a direct and unequivocal result " . . . of the primary illegality . . . " . Id. Moreover, the record in this case clearly reflects that there is no attenuation between the illegally seized evidence, which served as the basis for both the vehicle and property search warrants, and the "fruits" resulting from the execution of the second warrant. See Brown v. Illinois, 422 U.S. 590 (1975). Accordingly, the arrest of Petitioners, being founded upon the fruits of an illegal search, cannot be sustained. Wong Sun v. United States, supra.

Purging the tainted information from the Affidavit in support of the second Search Warrant (i.e. "[s]aid camper truck was stopped by affiant and search [sic] > approx. 25 bales of marijuana. That said source is reliable and is member in good standing in Hyde Co. and Scranton community. Source has given information in the past that has proven to be true and reliable. That said information has been checked out by affiant on 1-13-79 and was found true. Affiant has known source for 40 yrs.

with warrant on 1-14-79 and found to contain approx. 25 bales of marijuana"[.]) strips the Affidavit of sufficient facts to establish probable cause for the issuance of the search warrant. Whitely v. Warden, Wyoming State Penitentiary, supra, Spinelli v. United States, supra., Aguilar v. Texas, supra.

Thus, issuance of the Writ is necessary to remedy the violations of Petitioners' Constitutional rights.

CONCLUSION

We respectfully urge the Court, for all of the reasons set forth above, to grant a Writ of Certiorari and to reverse the decision below.

Respectfully submitted,

Appeal by defendants from Strickland, Judge. Judgment entered 13 August 1979 in Superior Court, Hyde County. Heard in the Court of Appeals 25 April 1980.

The defendants were indicted for various crimes connected with the possession and sale of marijuana. Prior to trial the defendants made motions to suppress as evidence marijuana which had been confiscated after searches of a vehicle driven by the defendant Trapper and a building on property owned by the defendant Nunzio Lombardo. A hearing on the motions to suppress was held before Judge Godwin. The evidence at the hearing showed that Charlie Carrowan is a Deputy Sheriff of Hyde County. Approximately two years prior to January 1979, the defendant Nunzio Lombardo purchased a tract of land approximately one-half mile from Mr. Carrowan's home. A housetrailer was placed on the property. Mr. Carrowan had some complaints from a neighbor about noises that sounded as if they came from boat motors and trucks in the area of Mr. Lombardo's property. On one occasion Mr. Carrowan arranged to have a 60-foot boat named the "Lady Barbara" towed from Fortiscue Creek which runs in front of the Lombardo property. The operator of the boat told Mr. Carrowan that it had been driven into the creek from the Pungo River by the wind. Based on his knowledge of the wind at the time the boat had run aground, Mr. Carrowan did not believe this was true. Mr. Carrowan then began a surveillance of the Lombardo property from the water. Several shots were fired in his direction which he believed came from the Lombardo property. After that, he began a surveillance of the Lombardo property from the land side. He considered the amount of traffic abnormal but he did not observe any illegal activity.

On 13 January 1979 Mr. Carrowan received information that a truck had entered the Lombardo property. He began a surveillance of the property at approximately 6:30 p.m. At approximately midnight, he saw clearance lights coming up the road on the Lombardo property to the highway. Mr. Carrowan followed the truck for some distance before stopping it. He testified, "As far as I could observe the driver of this truck was not breaking any motor vehicle laws." He also testified, "As to whether it was my intent to conduct a search of this truck, if I had further reason to search this truck such as if he denied me the privilege to look or anything else that he had to hide, anything that would give me any idea he had something to hide, yes, I intended to search it."

The defendant Trapper was the driver of the truck and he gave Mr. Carrowan a proper driver's license and registration card. A few minutes after the truck was stopped, Deputy Sheriff Melvin Collins and Trooper Darrell Bass of the Highway Patrol, arrived to assist Mr. Carrowan. Approximately ten minutes had elapsed after the truck was stopped when Trooper Bass walked around the truck four times. He testified he smelled the odor of marijuana emanating from the passenger side of the truck. The other two officers then went to the passenger side and smelled the odor of marijuana. The defendant Trapper was placed under arrest and Deputy Sheriff Collins went to procure a search warrant. The affidavit for the search warrant made by Deputy Sheriff Collins contained the following statement:

> "The applicant swears to the following facts to establish probable cause for the issuance of a search warrant: a strong odor or marihuana [sic] was noticed as a license check was being made on driver of said vehicle. Information was given in confidence and from a very reliable informant, also."

A search warrant was issued and a search of the truck revealed it contained several bales of marijuana.

A warrant was then procured to search the property of Nunzio Lombardo. During this search several bales of marijuana were found. Judge Godwin made findings of fact consistent with the evidence and overruled the motions to suppress. Each defendant pled guilty at a later term of court. All defendants appealed from the sentences imposed.

Attorney General Edmisten, by Assistant Attorney General Daniel F. McLawhorn, for the State.

Herman E. Gaskins, Jr., Joel Hirschhorn, and Smith, Patterson, Follin, Curtis, James and Harkavy, by Michael K. Curtis, for defendant appellants.

WEBB, Judge.

We note at the outset that our Supreme Court has recently held in State v. Reynolds, 298 N.C. 380, 259 S.E. 2d 843 (1979) that if a defendant intends to appeal from a ruling on a suppression motion after a plea of guilty, he must give notice of his intention to the prosecutor and the court before plea negotiations are finalized or he will lose his right of appeal. The record is not clear in this case that any notice of intention to appeal was given the prosecutor or the court. We shall consider the appeal on its merits.

The defendants contend that we should reverse and order the evidence of the marijuana suppressed. They argue that the affidavit submitted to the magistrate to search the truck did not support the issuance of a search warrant for the truck; that if the affidavit did support the issuance of the search warrant for the truck, the testimony at the hearing on the motions to suppress showed the evidence on which the affidavit was made was illegally obtained; the warrant to search the premises of Nunzio Lombardo was based on the invalid warrant to search the truck which makes it an invalid warrant; that even if the warrant to search the premises of Nunzio Lombardo was a good warrant, the officers exceeded the scope of the warrant in their search; and that the officers did not properly serve the warrant to search the premises.

In order for a magistrate to issue a search warrant, he must have evidence before him from which he can find probable cause that a crime has been committed and probable cause that evidence of the crime may be on the premises to be searched. See Aguilar v. Texas, 378 U.S. 108, 84 S.Ct. 1509, 12 L.Ed. 2d 723 (1964). We hold that the affidavit in the case sub judice which contained the statement "a strong odor or marihuana [sic] was noticed as a license check was being made on driver of said vehicle" was evidence from which a magistrate could conclude that there was probable cause that the driver of the truck was in possession of marijuana and the marijuana might be found by a search of the truck. The word "or" was clearly a typographical error. The maker of the affidavit intended to use the word "of" in the context of the sentence. The defendants, relying on Delaware v. Prouse, 440 U.S. 648, 99 S.Ct. 1391, 59 L.Ed. 2d 660 (1979) contend that the affidavit showed on its face that the evidence was illegally obtained since it stated the odor of marijuana was detected while a license check was being made. Prouse held that evidence of marijuana was unconstitutionally obtained when a patrolman made a random stop of a car because he "wasn't answering any complaints." There was no reason to think the driver of the vehicle was violating any law at the time he was stopped. The United States Supreme Court held this intrusion violated the driver's Fourth and Fourteenth Amendment rights. The Supreme Court recognized that some driver's license checks are constitutionally permissible giving as one example a checkpoint operation in which all cars proceeding past a certain point are stopped. When the magistrate examined the affidavit in the case sub judice, it did not show what kind of driver's license check had been made. The affidavit did not show on its face that the driver's license check was improper. The magistrate did not err in issuing the warrant for a search of the truck.

The defendants' next contention is that the hearing before Judge Godwin showed that the evidence used to procure the search warrant for the truck was illegally obtained. They contend first that the odor of marijuana was not obtained under a plain view. See State v. Blackwelder, 34 N.C. App. 352, 238 S.E. 2d 190 (1977). We do not believe the plain view doctrine is dispositive of this case. The defendants also contend that Mr. Carrowan did not have a valid reason to stop the truck and if he did, the officer could not detain the truck after the driver's license and registration check had revealed nothing irregular.

The United States Supreme Court has in several cases passed on the question of detaining persons for investigation without probable cause to believe the persons have committed crimes. See Dunaway v. New York, 442 U.S. 200, 99 S.Ct. 2248, 60 L.Ed. 2d 824

(1979); Delaware v. Prouse, supra; United States v. Brignoni-Ponce, 422 U.S. 873, 95 S.Ct. 2574, 45 L.Ed. 2d 607 (1975); Terry v. Ohio, 392 U.S. 1, 88 S.Ct. 1868, 20 L.Ed. 2d 889 (1968). We believe these cases hold that, consistent with the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments, a person or vehicle may be detained for further investigation by a law enforcement officer without a warrant and without probable cause to believe a crime has been committed if the officer has a reasonable suspicion, that can be articulated, that a crime is being committed. The detention must not be unreasonable in length and the investigation must be reasonable. In the case sub judice, Mr. Carrowan was an experienced law enforcement officer; we take judicial notice of the fact that Hyde County is on the coast of North Carolina in an area which is regularly used by smugglers of marijuana; Mr. Carrowan had seen activity in the area of the Lombardo premises which made him suspicious; he had been fired upon while keeping the property under surveillance from the water; and he had seen a boat aground in the area of the premises without a satisfactory reason to him for its being there; and on 13 January 1979 at approximately 12:00 midnight, he saw a truck leave the premises of Nunzio Lombardo. We hold these are articulate reasons that could give rise to a suspicion on Mr. Carrowan's part that marijuana was being carried on the truck. He had a right to stop the truck for further investigation. We also hold the investigation was reasonable in extent and in time. The defendant Trapper was not interrogated. The officers did not open the truck body. They inspected it carefully from the outside until they detected the odor of marijuana. This took approximately ten minutes. Mr. Trapper's Fourth and Fourteenth Amendment rights were not violated. We hold that the evidence on which the warrant was issued to search the truck was not illegally gained.

The defendants' argument as to the validity of the warrant to search the Lombardo property is based on the invalidity of the warrant to search the truck. Since we have held that the warrant to search the truck was valid, we hold the search warrant for the Nunzio Lombardo premises was also valid.

The defendants also contend the officers exceeded the scope of the warrant in searching the premises of Nunzio Lombardo. The affidavit described the premises to be searched as follows:

> "A housetrailer, double wide, white, owned by Nunzio J. Lumbards [sic], Rt. 1, Scranton, N.C. located on North East side Fortescue [sic] Creek. That the house is approx. .2 mile off of RPR 1145 and is approx. .5 mile west of intersection of RPR 1145 & RUPR 1144. Said house is surrounded by several acres of land owned by Lumbards [sic]."

The warrant directed the officers to conduct a search of the place "described in [the] application." A search of the housetrailer did not reveal any marijuana. The officers also searched a tin shed approximately 30 feet from the housetrailer where they found several bales of marijuana. It is well settled that when a search is made pursuant to a warrant, the scope of the search is limited to the area described in the warrant. See United States v. Davis, 557 F. 2d 1239 (8th Cir. 1977); Keiningham v. United States, 287 F. 2d 126 (D.C. Cir. 1960); Rising Sun Brewing Co. v. United States, 55 F. 2d 827 (3d Cir. 1932). The question posed by this appeal is whether they were authorized to search a tin shed which was 30 feet away and used for storage by the occupants of the housetrailer when the warrant directed the officers to search the housetrailer. The closest case to this one which we have been able to find is State v. Travatello, 24 N.C. App. 511, 211 S.E. 2d 467 (1975). In that case this Court held a search of the defendant's premises did not exceed the scope of the warrant by including a search of a tool shed as well as the house itself. The case does not make it clear whether the warrant only directed a search of the house. We hold that under the warrant in the case sub judice, the officers properly searched the tin storage shed. The evidence was that it was a shed used for storage approximately 30 feet from the housetrailer. There was a concrete walkway connecting the housetrailer to the shed. Judge Godwin found the shed was a part of the curtilage and the officers did not exceed the scope of the warrant by searching the shed. We believe he was correct in this finding.

The defendants next contend that the officers in serving the search warrant for the Nunzio Lombardo residence did not give adequate notice of their identity and purpose before entering the premises and therefore violated the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution and they also violated G.S. 15A-249 and G.S. 15A-251. State Bureau of Investigation Agent Lewis Young testified that in serving the warrant, the officers went to the front door of the housetrailer, knocked on the door and identified themselves as officers. The door was opened and Mr.

Carrowan read the warrant to Nunzio Lombardo. Judge Godwin found that the warrant was executed by reading it to Nunzio Lombardo. We hold that the serving of the warrant for the search of Nunzio Lombardo's premises did not violate his constitutional rights, or his rights under Chapter 15A of the General Statutes.

The defendants' last assignment of error deals with the exclusion of the defendants from the courtroom for a part of the hearing on the motions to suppress the evidence. At the start of the hearing, the defendants moved that the State's witnesses be sequestered. The court allowed this motion and then on its own motion sequestered all the defendants who intended to testify. The first witness for the State was Charlie Carrowan. While he was testifying on direct examination, the court rescinded its order of sequestration and allowed all witnesses, including the defendants, to return to the courtroom. The defendants cite textbook authority for the proposition that a party to an action who is also a witness cannot be sequestered. See 88 C.J.S. Trial §68 (1955). We do not pass on this question in the case sub judice. The parties were allowed to return to the courtroom before the first witness had completed his testimony in chief. We hold the defendants have not shown they were prejudiced by being excluded from the courtroom for a short period of time.

No error.

PATRICK M. TRAPPER, NUNZIO JAMES LOMBARDO, DENNIS LOMBARDO, VINCENT SERGE LORUSSO, CLARK WILLIAM OLDENBROOK

JUDGMENT DISMISSING APPEAL ON MOTION OF ATTORNEY GENERAL (792SC1188)

This matter came on to be considered upon defendants' notice of appeal from the North Carolina Court of Appeals pursuant to G. S. 7A-30, and the Attorney General's motion to dismiss the appeal of the defendant for lack of substantial constitutional question; upon consideration whereof, it is adjudged by the Court in conference this 4th day of November 1980 that the motion to dismiss the appeal be allowed, and that it be so certified to the North Carolina Court of Appeals.

It is considered and adjudged further that the defendants do pay the sum of NINE AND NO/100 DOLLARS ($9.00) and execution issue therefor.

of North Carolina

ORDER ON MOTION TO SUPPRESS

[AR. 170] Motions by all parties defendant to suppress evidence of the January 14, 1979 search of the Ford truck operated by the defendant, Patrick M. Trapper, on which a camper was mounted and the seizure therefrom of bales of marijuana.

The State and the defendants offered evidence and argued the Motions.

From the evidence presented the court finds the following facts, viz:

1. That Hyde County Deputy Sheriff Charlie Carowan became acquainted with defendant, Nunzio James Lombardo, about two years ago when Lombardo first came to Hyde County and bought land located about one-half mile from Carowan's home;

2. That Lombardo stopped Carowan on the road and made inquires about the tract of land that he thereafter bought, and which was located as aforesaid; that Lombardo told Carowan that he was a retired police officer from the State of New York and that he was looking for a place to which he could [AR. 171] retire in an area in which he could hunt;

3. That the land about which Lombardo inquired of Carowan and which he subsequently bought is located adjacent to a paved, rural road and adjacent to the main stream of Fortescue Creek and a tributary thereof and that it had been cut-over and had a stand of small trees and undergrowth situate on it; that Fortescue Creek flows into Pungo River which constitutes a link in the Intra Coastal Waterway between Fairfield Cut and Pamlico River; that there was no building or other improvement on the land.

4. That although Carowan saw Lombardo infrequently thereafter he did notice and learn that development and improvements were underway on the Lombardo property; that rock driveways were under construction leading from the paved road; that construction equipment was being used on the property; that a gate was erected across the driveway near the place of its intersection with the public road and that it was continuously closed;

5. That Carowan began to receive reports from some of his acquaintances in the neighborhood that they had begun to hear the sounds of heavy truck and boat engines on and near the Lombardo property; that Carowan knew that such sounds were unusual in that area and had, therefore, attracted the attention of neighborhood residents.

6. That on December 21, 1978 Carowan received a report that a boat was aground in Fortescue Creek; that he is thoroughly familiar with the waters of Fortescue Creek and Pungo River; that he is an experienced waterman and possesses an understanding on the effect of wind and tides on vessels, both large and small, in inland waters; that he went to the reported boat and found her stuck in the mud bottom of Fortescue Creek about one (1) mile from the Lombardo property; that the wind was and had been out of the northwest and that the water was low; that the channel of Fortescue Creek is not marked and that only those who are acquainted with it are [AR. 172] likely to be able to successfully navigate the creek in anything other than a shallow draft boat; that he went to the grounded boat and found that she was the Lady Barbara and that her hailing port was Wilmington, Delaware; that she was 57 feet long and that she was housed-in from stem to stern; that a man stuck his head out of the boat on Carowan's arrival and that Carowan told him he could not pull the Lady Barbara into deeper water; that the man told Carowan that he was cold; that his engines were full of mud and would not run; that one of his shafts had backed-out; and that after the Lady Barbara became disabled in Pungo River she drifted into Fortescue Creek and into the mud where she was aground; that Carowan could not see into the Lady Barbara, and that he went to a trawler which was lying in Pungo River and made arrangements to have the Coast Guard at Hobucken called to the aid of the Lady Barbara and, thereafter, returned to Swan Quarter;

7. That the conduct and manner of the man aboard the Lady Barbara with whom Carowan talked appeared to Carowan to be an unusual and suspicious manner for one in trouble to manifest toward one attempting to offer aid to a boat in trouble; that Carowan knew that the channel in Pungo River was marked and sufficiently deep to accommodate the Lady Barbara and that he did not believe that she had pumped her engines full of mud in Pungo River; that he knew that the wind had been out of the northwest for a number of hours and that he knew that the Lady Barbara could not have drifted out of Pungo River into Fortescue Creek; that he further knew that the shaft of a forward moving boat did not back out; and that the conduct and manner of the man on the Lady Barbara with whom he talked and the unbelievable account given by him aroused Carowan's suspicions concerning whether the Lady Barbara had been trying to get to the Lombardo property and had run aground because of her pilot's unfamiliarity with the waters of Fortescue Creek;

[AR. 173] 8. That, thereafter, and because he had become suspicious that the Lombardo property was being put to some unlawful use, that he was aware that marijuana was being brought into the inland waters of North Carolina, and after December 21, 1978 and before January 14, 1979, Carowan decided to try to view the Lombardo property from Fortescue Creek; that he dressed in appropriate clothing, put a fish net in the bow of his small boat where it could easily be seen, and ran along Fortescue Creek off of the Lombardo property and while doing so saw a fish box which had washed ashore and stopped his boat to light a cigarette; that while doing so he heard two (2) high-powered rifle shots which, in his opinion, were fired on the Lombardo property, and that he could hear one (1) bullet as it passed near him; that he was convinced that the shots were intentionally fired in his direction to scare him away; and that he left the area.

9. That two (2) or three (3) days later Carowan contacted SBI Agent Lewis Young and discussed with him the above mentioned series of incidents and his resulting suspicion that the Lombardo property was the site of unlawful possession of marijuana or old furniture stolen from vacant old houses or buildings in the area; that he had previously received numerous reports that vacant old houses or buildings in the area had been entered and furniture had been stolen therefrom;

10. That Carowan made arrangements with State Highway Patrol Trooper Darrell Bass and with Hyde County Deputy Sheriff Melvin Collins to assist him when and if he had an opportunity to make further investigation into the use to which the Lombardo property was being put and the use to which vehicles with heavy engines traveling in and out of the Lombardo property were being put, and that when and if he had an opportunity to further investigate such vehicles, when and if they entered U.S. Highway Number 264, from the aforesaid rural paved road, [AR. 174] he wanted Bass and Collins to situate themselves respectively to the east and west of said intersection, and that a code was agreed upon to be used by them in communicating with each other; that several days after the aforesaid plans and arrangements were made and entered into and on January 13, 1979, Carowan received a report from a confidential informant who lived in the neighborhood that a Ford truck had been observed entering the Lombardo property, that prior thereto Carowan had conducted a continuing surveillance of the aforesaid rural paved road looking for tire tracks left by vehicles entering and leaving the Lombardo property; that on the night of January 13 and following the receipt of the aforementioned report of his confidential informant, he drove to a secluded place from which he could observe the Lombardo gate, but felt that he had been observed by occupants of a red automobile which drove into that area and drove his sheriff's car to his home where he obtained his personal automobile and drove back to the area in which he had formerly secluded himself and parked his automobile about fifty (50) yards from the Lombardo gate and remained there and surveilled the Lombardo property until about midnight when he saw lights approaching the road on the Lombardo driveway; that clearance lights on the top of the approaching vehicle were lighted; that the engine of the approaching vehicle appeared to be running in low gear, and that he concluded that the vehicle was heavily loaded; that when the vehicle came into full view he observed it was a large pickup truck on which a camper was mounted; that when the truck left the Lombardo gate, it turned toward U.S. Highway Number 264; that Carowan followed the truck to his home place where he left his personal automobile and pursued and followed the pickup truck in his sheriff's patrol car to the point of the intersection of the rural paved road and U.S. Highway Number 264, where the truck made a left turn and proceeded toward Belhaven, in Beaufort County, North Carolina; that before the truck reached U.S. Highway Number 264, Carowan advised Trooper Bass and Deputy Sheriff Collins that the truck was approaching U.S. Highway Number 264 on [AR. 175] aforesaid rural paved road; that when Carowan reached Scranton, he met Deputy Collins who followed him as he continued to follow the truck; that before Carowan reached the Wilkerson Creek Bridge, he advised Trooper Bass of his whereabouts and continued to follow the truck until he found a suitable place to stop it; turned on his blue light and stopped the truck;

11. That shortly thereafter Trooper Bass arrived on the scene; that Carowan determined that Trapper was the driver of the truck; that in response to Trapper's inquiry, Carowan told him the truck did not violate any traffic law, but that a number of reports had been received concerning the theft of furniture as aforementioned and asked Trapper if he could look into the camper — the truck was bearing New York State license tags; that Trapper advised Carowan that he did not have a key to the camper; that Trooper Bass came to Carowan and told him that the truck was loaded with marijuana; that Deputy Collins, Trooper Bass, and Carowan were all familiar with the odor of marijuana and that they and each of them smelled the odor of marijuana about the camper mounted on the pickup truck;

12. That Carowan arrested Trapper and sent Deputy Collins to Swan Quarter to seek the issuance of a search warrant authorizing the search of the aforesaid truck; that upon the return of Deputy Collins to the scene about 1:40 a.m., January 14, he had in his possession a search warrant authorizing the search of the camper (State Exhibit #2, to which reference is had, is a copy of the search warrant referred to); that the search warrant was served on Trapper and subsequently a search of the truck was made and it was found to be loaded with approximately forty (40) bales (about 4,000 pounds) [sic] of marijauna;

13. The SBI Agent Lewis Young arrived on the scene of the search of the truck, as aforesaid, and was fully advised of the matters and things transpiring before his arrival and that thereafter Carowan made application to Hyde County Magistrate [AR. 176] Spencer for the issuance of a search warrant to search the Lombardo double-wide house trailer for marijuana, a controlled substance, and that the magistrate issued the warrant which was executed at 5:15 o'clock a.m., January 14, 1979, by reading the same to Nunzio James Lombardo and that the Lombardo house and curtilage, including a metal storage building was searched and that a large quantity of baled and loose marijuana was found and seized from the aforesaid metal building and that other property and things as listed in the inventory on file with the court were found and seized.

THE COURT CONCLUDES:

1. That Deputy Sheriff Carowan had probable cause to believe that the aforesaid truck operated by the defendant Trapper was being put to an unlawful use at the time he stopped it, in the early hours of January 14, 1979, on U.S. Highway Number 264, in Hyde County, North Carolina;

2. That the Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court who issued a warrant authorizing a search of the aforesaid truck had before her sworn testimony constituting probable cause for the issuance of the search warrant authorizing the search of the aforesaid truck and the seizure of the marijuana subsequently found therein;

3. That Hyde County Magistrate Spencer had before him sworn testimony constituting probable cause for the issuance of the search warrant authorizing the search of the Lombardo home;

4. That Deputy Sheriff Carowan was authorized [AR. 177] by the search warrant issued by Magistrate

Spencer to search the Lombardo home and its curtilage which included the aforesaid metal storage building and to seize the marijuana found on those premises and the other property and things there seized as enumerated in the inventory on file in this court, and;

5. That the aforesaid motions of the several defendants to suppress the aforesaid evidence seized in the search of the aforesaid truck and Lombardo house and curtilage should be DENIED.

IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDERED that the aforesaid Motions to Suppress Evidence, as aforesaid, be and the same are DENIED.

Signed out of Session, County, and District by and with the consent of all parties hereto.

This the 3rd day of August, 1979.

Excerpts from Motion to Suppress Transcript

[MST. 11] A. At this time Mr. Lombardo advised me that he had worked with the police force in New York and he was interested in buying this piece of land for retirement and hunting purposes.

* * * * *

[MST. 15] Q. Mr. Sheriff, after this occasion you met Mr. Lombardo, did you observe some development on the property?

A. Yessir, I did.

Q. After the development took place did you begin to receive reports from people in the community there?

A. Yesir, I did.

Q. Would you tell us the nature of this, if you would?

HIRSCHHORN: OBJECTION, Hearsay.

OVERRULED.

A. After development started on the property, there was a rock road put in from this rural paved road back to the property and it was the rural paved road was a black top road. People lived up and down this road on the black top road. I had complaints from a neighbor about noises that sounded like heavy boat motors and trucks and in fact I saw tracks where a truck missed going in there and was pulled out, late at night and was keeping them awake.

* * * * *

[MST. 22] GRIFFIN: Q. Sheriff, did you at some point take your boat and go up into Fortiscue Creek to look at the property from the waterside?

A. I tried.

Q. When was it you did this?

A. This was, I don't have the exact date, but this was also after the date of the Lady Barbara.

Q. It was after the time that the Lady Barbara was aground in the creek?

A. Yessir.

Q. Tell us what you did on that occasion?

A. I went home and put on some old coveralls, so no one would recognize me. My boat is a flat bottom wood boat, homemade boat. I put a net in the boat. I was trying to observe this property. This property had a gate across the driveway with posted signes [MST. 23] on it and stayed locked most of the time. This property is close to the water, the house is only about 50 yards from the water but there is a place cleared out for the house and then there is a natural growth of thick pines around and a road around it that goes to the water. In some places you can see some of the house from the water.

Q. From the water?

A. Yes, I took my boat and come down this shore, the Northeast side of Fortiscue creek and there was a box where the creek or the tributary joins this land on the Northwest side, there was a box ashore on the other side, a paper fish box.

* * * * *

[MST. 23] Q. Let me ask you this, why was it you were going up there and take a look at this property?

A. So I could observe this property.

Q. Why did you want to look at it?

A. Because of the traffic and the complaints I had had from neighbors and noises late at night and people going in and out of this property at night. I knew in my mind that there was something [MST. 24] going on that should not be in this area.

Q. When you went up there on the boat, describe for us what happened?

A. At this particular time nothing happened. I went on down the creek. I actually did set a net. When I came back it put me facing the property, coming in. I stopped right close to this point and lit a cigarett so I could observe. I didn't cut the motor off. I put it out of gear and lit a cigarett. A high powered rifle bullet came by me near enough that I could hear it splitting the air and it came from the Lombardo place. The second shot was fired. I did not hear the bullet but I heard the report.

Q. Where did those rifle shots come from?

HIRSCHHORN: OBJECTION, That is highly speculative.

THE COURT: He can state his opinion concerning the source of the sound he heard the gunfire that he heard. You have been living in this county how long, did you say?

* * * * *

[MST. 25] GRIFFIN: Do you have an opinion satisfactory to yourself as to where those shots came from?

A. Yessir, I do.

Q. Where did they come from?

HIRSCHHORN: OBJECTION.

OVERRULED.

A. Lombardo's property.

Q. At this point, is there any other developed place near where you were at that time, any houses, or hunting camps, or anything up that creek there?

A. Not as near to me as Lombardo's place was.

Q. When this happened, what did you do?

A. I left.

* * * * *

[MST. 26] Q. After that occurred, did you begin surveilance of this property from the roadside, not from the waterside?

A. Yessir.

* * * * *

[MST. 28] Q. Now, I direct your attention to January 13, 1979, I believe is the correct date, did you undertake a surveilance of the premises on that date, in person?

A. Yessir, I did.

* * * * *

[MST. 34] Q. Sheriff, the report you had received at 5:30, did that person describe the vehicle that went in there at 5:30?

A. Yessir.

Q. What description was given to you?

HIRSCHHORN: OBJECTION.

OVERRULED.

A. A ford truck with camper body on it.

Q. You saw the clearance lights and headlights, what happened to that particular vehicle at that time?

A. I was observing it as close as possible. It was traveling far to slow for the rate the motor was turning.

HIRSCHHORN: OBJECTION.

OVERRULED.

Q. What did you notice about the engine?

CURTIS: OBJECTION

THE COURT: A Leading questions, but OVERRULED.

[MST. 35] A. The motor was turning at too high a rate of speed, it was in a low gear. It gave me the impression that it was loaded.

CURTIS. OBJECTION.

OVERRULED.

Q. Did it come out of the paved road?

A. Not while I was sitting where I was. I moved.

Q. Describe what you did.

A. When I saw this truck's headlights I knew I had to get in my patrol car because I had no blue light on my personal car. I only had a walkie-talkie to talk to the other two boys I had in position on 264.

Q. You say you had somebody assisting you on this occasion?

A. Yessir.

Q. Who did you have?

A. Trooper Bass and Deputy Collins.

* * * * *

[MST. 35] Q. Tell us what you did when this truck proceeded out to the road?

A. The truck was getting about half way out, it had come about halfway out from Lombardo's cabin to the rural paved road, on the rock road.

* * * * *

[MST. 37] A. I called Trooper Bass. I told him I had a 10-50. We had these signals already fixed up in case we needed them.

Q. Why did you use a false signal, sheriff?

A. Because a scanner, anyone can buy our frequency, they can copy us on a scanner, and know what we were doing. I did not want to stop this truck in this area because I was thinking at the time that there was marijuana in Lombardo's place and I knew if I stopped it close to it that we were going to have trouble, probably have a fire on hand or something and probably wouldn't get the chance to search the place.

VOERMAN: OBJECTION.

COURT: That Objection is SUSTAINED, a strike is allowed.

HIRSCHHORN: I would not like to join in that objection, I would like that answer in the record.

* * * * *

[MST. 40] Q. When you went up to the driver's side, who did you find out the operator of the vehicle to be?

A. Mr. Trapper sitting back there.

Q. When you first approached the vehicle what did you say to him?

A. It is just a policy, and always has been, to ask a person for his driver's license to get their name so you can talk to them on a name-to-name basis.

Q. Did he present a drivers license to you at that time?

A. Yessir.

[MST. 41] Q. After the drivers license was presented to you, what did you say to him then?

A. I told Mr. Trapper that we had been having trouble in this area with people taking furniture from old houses, and asked him if I could see in the camper. He told me he did not have a key.

Q. He said what?

A. He did not have a key to the camper.

Q. Go ahead.

A. I asked him for the registration card to the camper. He gave me the registration card.

Q. To whom was the vehicle registered?

A. I cannot tell you, but I will tell you what happened.

Q. What happened after he presented that to you?

A. Trooper Bass had drove up and stopped. I gave him the registration card.

* * * * *

[MST. 45] A. At that particular time I forget now exactly where I put Trapper under arrest. I don't know whether I put Trapper under arrest at that time or if Collins did.

* * * * *

[MST. 47] Q. Upon smelling this, what did you do then?

A. After I walked back to Trapper on the left hand side of the truck, Collins also went around there on that side, and he advised me that he could smell marijuana. At this time I advised Collins to get all the information from the camper and the truck and go back and get a search warrant. At this time we had placed Trapper under arrest.

COURT: Trapper was under arrest at what time?

A. Trapper was under arrest when I sent Collins, Collins went back to get a search warrant.

* * * * *

[MST. 56] Q. What is the first thing Mr. Bass did after he got there?

A. I was having trouble with the . . . I don't work too much traffic, and I was having trouble with the registration.

GASKINS: I'm sorry, I didn't hear that.

A. The registration, I was having trouble with it. I believe I gave the registration card to Trooper Bass to check.

Q. As soon as he got there you say you gave the registration [MST. 57] card to him to check?

A. I believe that's right, that is the first thing I remember at this time, that is the first thing Trooper Bass and myself had in common.

Q. And at that point he went to his car to check the registration, is that right?

A. Yessir.

Q. And he checked it?

A. Yessir.

Q. And he came back and spoke to you, is that right?

A. He came back and went on the right hand side of the truck.

Q. Is that after he checked the registration?

A. Yessir.

* * * * *

[MST. 60] Q. When you stopped Mr. Trapper, I think you told him something about being concerned about stolen furniture?

A. Yessir.

Q. You didn't believe, or have any suspicions that Mr. Trapper himself had stolen any furniture that night, did you?

A. No sir, but we have been having trouble in this area with people stealing furniture and I didn't know what he had in there. I believed he had marijuana in there, but he could have also had old furniture in there.

Q. You thought it might have been stolen furniture too, didn't you?

A I figured it was going to be stolen furniture or marijuana.

Q. It could have been one or the other.

A. I figured there was something in there, I figured there was something going wrong up at Lombardo's place is the reason I stopped that truck, and these two things were most forward in my mind.

* * * * *

[MST. 62] Q. And you all took him at some point and put him in a squad car, didn't you?

A. Yessir.

Q. Was that shortly after he got out?

A. I would say this was about ten minutes after he got out.

Q. That was before you got a search warrant?

A. Yessir.

Q. And he was in a squad car?

A. Yessir.

* * * * *

[MST. 63] Q. Was he with you at that point, Mr. Trapper?

A. Yes.

Q. Was Mr. Collins with you and Mr. Trapper at that time?

A. No, Mr. Collins had come back to Swan Quarter to get the search warrant.

Q. After that point you all had the keys to Mr. Trapper's truck?

A. I am sure that we kept the keys or left them in the truck. I would say they were not in Mr. Trapper's possession, not the keys to the truck.

* * * * *

[MST. 68] A. Really, I didn't get too many complaints on the place until about six weeks before this when the complaints got to be bothersome. I told some of them not to talk about it, just to wait a while and I might could tell them more, to keep them quiet.

Q. Is it fair to say then, at the time you received those complaints that you had some suspicious about what was going on there?

A. Yes, I became very suspicious after the Lady Barbara.

Q. After the Lady Barbara?

A. Yes.

Q. You had heard the noises or had the complaints about the noises, I believe you testified, prior to the Lady Barbara being seen, had you not?

A. I had been kind of keeping watch on the place, but I [MST. 69] don't recall saying that I had had complaints before that time.

Q. Is it fair to say then that you had just sort of been keeping watch on the place before you had any complaints or before you saw the Lady Barbara?

A. I would say I didn't have enough complaints to amount to anything, not enough to worry me until after this time. After this time I did receive complaints, I did hear the noises at my home.

Q. My question was, Mr. Carrowan, before you heard the noises and before you saw the Lady Barbara that you yourself had in your mind had some suspicious [sic] about this place?

A. Yessir, I did.

Q. And those suspicions were not based on anybody's complaints or anything you had seen, they were just suspicions in your mind, is that right?

A. Suspicious were traffic, strange cars. We live in an isolated area. It is a loop road you cannot go in any further off of 264, and we don't pick up many strange cars that we don't know. Strange cars, out of state cars and things like this draws attention and people ask me about them.

Q. So then the suspicious [sic] were that there were cars you didn't recognize and some out of state cars?

A. And the traffic in that road.

Q. Yes, but not of any illegal activities that you know of?

A. No, not that I know or or I would have had them up here before now.

[MST. 70] Q. Just because you started seeing some strangers in some strange cars?

A. No sir.

Q. Isn't that what you just said?

A. No sir. It was abundance of things, strange cars, traffic in and out and Mr. Lombardo's activity. He had nothing in common with any law enforcement officers in Hyde County. His gate was lock, stayed locked most of the time. This was a metal gate put across there and these things just don't look like an ordinary hunting camp. We don't have it like that in this area. It is very unusual. You couldn't observe them, you couldn't see the place from the water, you could barely see the top unless you got up in the little tributary. You could actually see it better from the road, at nearabout a North view than you could anywhere else, looking from the North towards the South, and a little beyond a wooded area back looking from the East toward the West, they put you too far off.

Q. Is it fair to say, Mr. Carrowan that you became suspicious because it was sort of a private place and you couldn't see it and you didn't know what was going on there?

A. It was better than private.

* * * * *

[MST. 72] Q. Had you seen any of the other Defendants in this case, did you see any of them on that boat?

A. No sir, just one man is all I saw on that boat.

* * * * *

[MST. 73] Q. I am talking about the day the Coast Guard pulled the boat off the bottom at Fortiscue Creek, you did not detect any illegal activity by the boat and as far as you knew neither did the Coast Guard, is that correct?

A. That is right.

* * * * *

[MST. 82] Q. Now, on the date of January 13, I believe this all occurred on January 13, is that correct?

A. On January 13, that was the day that I went into cover to watch this particular truck, yes.

Q. So you had information that a truck had gone into the Lombardo property?

A. Yessir.

Q. That was from a confidential informant?

A. Yessir.

Q. I believe you testified earlier that that was a good person or neighbor, or some characterization of that sort?

A. Yes, that is a good person, good reference.

Q. I believe you said it was a neighbor?

A. Yessir.

* * * * *

[MST. 82] Q. Had you ever received such information while you still thought a truck was still in there?

A. No sir, this was the first information that I had that [MST. 83] a truck had gone in and that I had a chance to observe it.

Q. That is what I was asking, this was the first time that you had a chance to get there?

A. Yessir. Most of the complaints were that a truck had been in before and it was too late for me to go, when I got the word it was too late.

* * * * *

[MST. 84] Q. You had arranged for Mr. Bass, the highway patrolman to ge [sic] in radio communication with you, is that correct?

A. Yessir.

Q. And you had arranged for another deputy to be in radio communication with you?

A. Yessir, a deputy.

[MST. 84] Q. So, it was your intent, I take it, based upon your actions after you observed the truck coming out, it was your intent at that time to stop this truck?

A. Yessir, it was.

Q. Was it your intent to conduct a search of this truck?

A. If I had further reason to search this truck such as if he denied me the privilege to look or anything else that he had to hide, anything that would give me any idea that he had something to hide, yes, I intended to search it.

[MST. 85] Q. I am trying to understand what you told me, if I understand what you said was, it was your intent to stop the truck?

A. Yes, if I could find a reason.

[MST. 95] Q. Mr. Carrowan, after the Lady Barbara incident, you were sure in your own mind as far as you were concerned that the property, the Lombardo property was being used for storing or transporting marijuana, were you not?

A. In my mind, yessir.

[MST. 102] Q. On January 14 or the day before you stopped this truck, you had had conversations with Trooper bass, had you not?

A. Yessir, repeat what date?

Q. On the day before you stopped the truck that night, during the daytime prior to stopping it during the evening?

A. I wouldn't say that I had a conversation with him. Yes, I had a conversation with him the day before

I stopped that truck because I talked to him that afternoon when I decided I would check it out, and decided I was going to go ahead and watch this truck. I did talk to him over the telephone. I didn't talk to him anymore before I talked to him on the radio which was the same day. No, that was the next morning, it was after 12:00 when I talked to him over the radio again.

Q. What did you tell him during the day?

A. When I talked to him over the telephone I told him, we didn't want to put anymore than we had to on the radio. I talked to him and he said, "I'll talk to Collins, I'll call him myself, I'll tend to that, you go ahead." I told him that I was ready and that I was going to start observing something.

Q. Did you have any agreement as to where he would be during the evening while you were doing your observation?

A. Yessir, but he had changed, they had changed positions, we had an agreement before.

[MST. 106] Q. [. . . .] How many miles is it from the Lorusso property, I'm sorry, the Lombardo property to the place you stopped the truck?

A. I believe you are going to have to add this up. From the Lombardo property is one and one tenth (1.1) mile on 1141 to 1145: it is 2 miles to 1139; 4 miles to US 264; it is one and seven tenths (1.7) miles on 264 to 1145; and from there on to where I stopped him is six and eight tenths (6.8) miles.

Q. You stopped this vehicle within 1 mile of the county line, did you not?

A. Yessir.

Q. The Beaufort County line?

A. It is about a mile, I wouldn't say exactly. It may be a little over a mile.

[MST. 107] Q. As far as you could observe the driver of this truck was not breaking any motor vehicle laws?

A. For an individual it would have been, yes, breaking a vehicle law, but to a law enforcement officer, no.

THE COURT: I anticipate that you are telling him that you feel that you were not violating the law, but I understood his question to inquire whether you saw Trapper, the driver of the truck, violate any motor vehicle law?

A. No sir, I did not.

* * * * *

[MST. 109] Q. You asked him for his drivers license?

A. Yessir.

Q. And he gave them to you?

A. Yessir.

Q. And they were correct drivers license, were they not? They showed his true identity?

A. Yessir, to the best of my knowledge, I didn't question it

Q. It said Pat Trapper on it, did it not?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you also ask him for the registration?

A. Yessir.

Q. And he was able to provide a registration, was he not?

A. Yessir.

[MST. 115] Q. Afte the shooting incident that you have described, did you attempt to at anytime to get a better look at the property, specifically the trailer and the shed by going on the land?

A. After when?

Q. The shooting incident you have described?

A. I didn't understand your question.

Q. You told the Judge that when you were in your boat you heard a couple of shots. One bullet whistled by you?

A. Yessir

Q. What I am asking you, is when that occurred, did you [MST. 116] attempt to investigate the matter further by going up to the dock, not the same day but several days thereafter?

A. No sir.

Q. Did you make any effort to go on the property to investigate what was going on in view of the fact that you had been, as you said, shot at?

A. You mean before we made the arrest?

Q. Yes.

A. No sir.

* * * * *

[MST. 119] Q. I recall your testifying earlier the reason you set up a signal, a series of signals with Mr. Collins about a call 10-50, you didn't want your radio signals picked up by a scanner, is that right?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. You were concerned that if something happened and your signal was picked up you wouldn't get a chance to search the Lombardo house, is that right?

A. That is right. If we found anything on that truck, we would not, we were afraid we would have a fire or something. I didn't want anyone to know.

[MST. 124] Q. Describe for us what you did when you came up behind him?

A. When I arrived I observed Mr. Carrowan's vehicle directly behind the Trapper vehicle. Behind the Carrowan Vehicle was Deputy Collins' vehicle. I pulled up behind those and got out and walked up to Mr. Carrowan, Mr. Collins and Mr. Trapper. Mr. Carrowan had the registration card in his hand. He gave it to me and I went back to my patrol car to request a vehicle ownership check by computer files. It checked out to the proper owner in that respect. I walked back to Mr. Carrowan and gave him the registration card and told him that it checked out properly. I walked around on [MST. 125] the right hand side of the camper, all the way around to the front and stood there a few minutes.

Q. Which way did you go around the camper?

A. On the right hand side, the passenger side.

* * * * *

[MST. 154] Q. You all held him there for some period of time before any marijuana was smelled, did you not?

A. Yessir.

[MST. 155] Q. He was not free to leave, was he?

A. No sir.

* * * * *

[MST. 160] Q. Could you tell me, sir, whether you obtained information "in confidence and from a very reliable informant" or whether you were simply putting in the application what Mr. Carrowan had told you.

A. At that time I was putting in the application what Mr. Carrowan told me.

* * * * *

[MST. 166] Q. After that was done, at some point did you go out into the yard to a building near the home and residence you had been in?

A. Yessir, it would have been at least five minutes or more after the search warrant had been completed because we had gotten the people together. Someone came in and advised me that there bales in the warehouse out back.
